Student Leadership Evaluation Questions

Having a student leader experience doesn't necessarily make a person an experienced student leader. Only by evaluating experiences can a person actually learn something. The difference between those who take the time to evaluate their experiences and those who don't is like comparing a student leader who has 4 years of experience with a student leader who has 1 year of experience 4 times.

- » What did I learn as a student leader?

- » What will I need to remember from my student leadership year?

- » Which interactions with others taught me the most about how to work with people?

- » What am I better at as a result of this student leadership experience?

- » How would I describe my student leadership experience in 100 words?

- » How am I better prepared for the next chapter in my story?

- » What would I have done differently as a student leader?

- » If I had one hour with a group of newly elected student leaders, what would I want to talk to them about?

- » What mistakes did I make this year and what did I learn from them?

- » What do I hope to be remembered for as a student leader?

- » How could I have done better as a student leader?
